Details:

Edison Career and Technology High School is hosting its first-ever Young Men’s Day on Monday, June 10, an event exclusively tailored for young men and the unique challenges they encounter. The day will provide a focused opportunity for them to acquire skills, knowledge, and mentorship necessary for success beyond high school. Throughout the day, students will interact with accomplished professionals, gaining insights on various aspects of career development. Sessions will cover topics such as resume writing and effective interviewing techniques, ensuring students are well-prepared after graduation.

Representatives from the City of Rochester and the State of New York will be on hand to provide information about civil service positions. Additionally, local labor organizations will provide information on potential careers within the skilled trades.

In addition to career-focused sessions, students will be able to enhance their financial literacy by learning from Jarrett Felton, the Founder and Managing Director of Investent, a financial management company. Topics such as understanding credit scores, banking basics, financial aid options, and personal wellness will be covered.
