What we're working on...

We're already almost halfway through the year! Over the next couple of weeks, I will be conferencing with students about their progress towards earning the high school credit for art.

We are still working hard on the landscape drawings that we began before break. These will be completed using not one, not two, but THREE different media. We've finished the colored pencil sections, and will be moving on to a watercolor pencil section before finishing the largest section in watercolor paints.
